This book describes a research-based project that was developed to assess Certified Nursing Assistants' (CNAs) knowledge and attitudes about ethical issues and end-of-life decision-making and to provide educational intervention and support. CNAs provide most of the hands-on care in long term care facilities and develop close relationships with residents under their care. As a result, treatment termination of care can have a marked impact on CNAs. Based on the project's findings, an accompanying workbook was designed to enable nursing homes to conduct an ethics evaluation program for their CNAs. This workbook Teaching End-of-Life Ethics to CNAs (contained in this volume) is authored by Orah R. Burack and colleagues. It has useful appendices including a questionnaire, an instruction booklet for ethics education with responses from the original study, an evaluation form, and a CNA ethics booklet. This workbook will enable nursing facilities to implement the program on their own.
